

A Christian since a young child, Jeff grew up in Blyth, Ontario where his father pastored a church. Jeff's compassion and servant heart led him into work as a front-line, clinical Social Worker, where he has been helping people through life's difficult times for over 30 years. During these years, God has led him to volunteer with various community agencies and outreaches, where he has participated both in leadership and face to face positions as he walks alongside those facing challenges and obstacles, assisting others to move forward on their life journey.

Jeff is married to Aileen (who loves chocolate) and father to Mark (the household tech support). Any given day can find him cooking, reading or caring for others (sometimes all 3!) as he exercises his giftings to support and encourage those around him.
